"August Flower"

Mr. Lorenzo F. Sleeper is very well known to the citizens of Appleton, Me., and neighborhood. He says: "Eight years ago I was taken 'sick, and suffered as no one but a 'dyspeptic can. I then began taking August Flower. At that time 'I was a great sufferer. Every- 'thing I ate distressed me so that I 'had to throw it up. Then in a 'few moments that horrid distress 'would come on and I would have 'to cat and suffer 'again. I took a 'little of your med- 'icine, and felt much 'better, and after 'taking a little more 'August Flower my 'Dyspepsia disap- 'peared, and since that time I 'have never had the first sign of it. 'I can eat anything without the 'least fear of distress. I wish all 'that are afflicted with that terrible 'disease or the troubles caused by 'it would try August Flower, as I 'am satisfied there is no medicine 'equal to it."

Some of Phillips Brooks' Ancestors.
The old Phillips home in North Andover, where the bishop-elect passed much of his boyhood, is a venerable gainbrel roofed building, built in 1783 by Dr Brooks' great grandfather, the Hon Samuel Phillips—Lieutenant Governor Phillips—one of the founders of Andover academy. It was in its day one of the most elegant houses of the town. The old house is now rich in old family treasures; there are fine old family portraits there is a portrait of Washington, presented by one of his nephews—old silver tankards and porringers, massive sideboard, tapestries, an old carved cabinet a library of quaint old books.
In the southeast parlor General Washington was once received by Miss Phoebe Foxcroft Phillips, wife of Samuel Phillips. She was a lady graced with social accomplishments, she was extremely beautiful, sweet and graceful in manner and carriage, and a person of extraordinary conversational powers. It was said by one who knew her that her "style of conversation surpassed that of any one, male or female, in the country." She was the chief donor on the occasion of the establishment of Andover Theological seminary.
She was a gifted writer of letters, and possessed great strength of mind and tenacity of purpose. That she was beautiful one could well believe, judging her by the portrait of her son, Colonel John Phillips. His face is remarkably sweet and regular in expression, classic, denot-ing refinement, high breeding, purity and composure of spirit. The face of Colonel Phillips is remarkably like that of his grandson, Phillips Brooks, and the resemblance is heightened by the eyeglasses worn by each.
Colonel Phillips graduated at Harvard in 1795, studied law, but on account of ill health never practiced, but went into trade in Charlestown, where he married Miss Lydia Gorham, a daughter of Judge Nathaniel Gorham. One of his daughters, Mary Anne Phillips, married Mr.
William Gray Brooks and became the mother of Phillips Brooks. William Gray Brooks was for forty years a hardware merchant in Boston. He was a member of St. Paul's church and was a near relative of Peter Chardon Brooks, the wealthy marine underwriter of Boston.—Boston Transcript.

Who Owned This Schooner?
"Who owned the schooner?" is a question which was asked but not answered in a case decided by Judge Nelson in the United States district court.
The schooner was the Robert P. King, and in the latter part of last year she loaded at a port in Maine with a cargo for a port in New Jersey. Properly manned and equipped she sailed, but she never reached her destination, and this is not the most singular fact connected with this peculiar case.
It was not long after leaving the Maine port before she was due in New Jersey, and as she did not arrive a search was made for her, and she was finally found at Wood's Holl, minus the cargo. The shippers immediately libeled her for failure to deliver the latter, and tried to find some one to serve the papers on, but to their surprise the vessel had been abandoned, every one on board having cleared for parts unknown.
The libel was duly advertised, a hearing had, and Judge Nelson has now, after a sale, ordered the proceeds to be distributed among the shippers of the cargo. The reason for the owners of the schooner leaving her to her fate is made more a mystery from the fact that the cargo was not a valuable one, but in fact worth much less than the schooner.

A Hungry Neighbor.
A tigress in the Nagpur district has a fondness for the employees of the Bengal-Nagpur railway, frequents a tract of country only about nine miles square in area, and is possessed of extraordinary cunning and sagacity. This year up to April she has killed seven people besides wounding others. She lives in a rocky and precipitous spur, in which there is a heavy bamboo and other jungle.
Several springs of water rise at the foot of the scarps, and there is a cave which shows many signs of being used by her and her family. A big stone just outside of the entrance is scored deep and long with many scratches of her claws. In February last, in broad daylight, she carried off one of a gang of permanent way men from under the eyes of his companions. She had been shot at many times and her cubs killed, but she got off scratchless.—Week's Sport.

The Carson Morning News says: "The V. & T. has a force of men at work at Reno putting a new roof on the Asylum." As the Asylum is supported by the taxpayers of the State it is not impertinent to ask why every mechanic in the State was not given an opportunity to compete with the V. & T. corporation for the work at the Asylum?
Special attention is directed to the announcement of John Sunderland. WEDDING BELLS.
Nuptial Ceremonies at Glendale—List of Presents.
In Glendale, on the evening of the 17th instant, at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. Wm. Lucas united in the bonds of holy matrimony, Wm. S. Neasham of Fort Bidwell, Cal., and Miss Matilda Curnow of Reno, Nevada. Miss Josie Gulling acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. James Eason as groomsmen. The bride was dressed in cream India silk with low bodice handsomely trimmed with rich lace, ribbon and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore pink albatross, made very prettily and, also, wore flowers.
The presents were as follows:
Parlor organ, from the bride's parents; table scarf, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Martin; silver cake basket, from Mrs. J. A. and H. E. Bladell; rocking chair, from Mr. and Mrs. Shuffelt; sauce dish and plates (tancy), Joseph and Robert Eason; pair of vases, from P. M. Joury; silver pickle castor, R. H. Kinney and family; hanging lamp, from the bride's brother; silver fruit knives (plush case), from Miss L. M. Curnow; one-half dozen napkins, S. Emrich; pair vases, L. L. Lewis; lace handkerchief, Friend; china doll and handkerchief; Fred Hall.
After the wedding, which took place on the large porch, and the two were made one, many congratulations and good wishes were expressed. Cake and wine were passed and healths drunk, after which a sumptuous supper was served, to which every one did ample justice. Music, singing and merry-making finished the evening, and everyone went home feeling well satisfied that they had spent one more young couple on the road to fight their worldly battle to success. A GUEST.
"BABY" MCKEE'S FATHER.
He Is In the Dry Goods Business In Indianapolis.
While "Baby" McKee, the grandson of the gold bug of the White House, has acquired national notoriety, and his mother has been frequently mentioned in connection with Presidential receptions and affairs of State, nothing has ever been said in the official or party organs about the "baby's" father. This ominous silence led many to suppose that the "baby" had no father this side of spirit land, and caused inquisitive individuals, who expected no favors from the House of Harrison, to inquire about the "baby's" daddy. Among these was a correspondent of the JOURNAL, who, in alluding to the genealogy of the Presidential family, said:
"Where, O where, can the gentleman be, Who claims to be daddy of Baby McKee?" Now a note to the JOURNAL from Sacramento answers this very important question. It says "Baby" McKee has a father, and the gentleman is in the dry goods business in Indianapolis, Indiana. When the Presidential party returned from California the "baby's" father was mentioned by the local papers as meeting the party and accompanying his wife and the "baby" to Washington.
THE INCLINE.
A Lively Camp Full of Lumbermen.
Representatives of the Carson Appeal visited the Incline last Monday, and found that lively camp full of lumbermen, with no idle hands. The narrow gauge road, with its little engine, winds in and out of the thickly wooded forest with the lofty hills on one side and Tahoe on the other, whistling and puffing as loud as an overland passenger engine. The little wood cars on the incline move slowly along with their loads, three going up full and as many down empty. The grade will average 45 degrees, and takes the rider 1,500 feet above the level of the lake. All day the huge, throbbing cables carry these loads up and down, handling in all 300 cords a day of 200 cordloads.
The cars run to Sand Harbor every hour, returning with several flat cars loaded with immense logs. Nelson Stubbs, an old Carsonite, handles the engine used for hauling logs from the water, and Charley Bluthen, formerly of Carson, is an engineer on the railroad.
The season will be a good one, and millions of feet of the best lumber and wood on the coast will be taken out. The men are all sober and hard working, no liquor of any kind being allowed on the place.

CLEVER PARIS ROGUES.

METHODS ADOPTED BY FRENCH
THIEVES TO SECURE BOOTY.
Crooks That Act with Surpassing Skill and Cunning—The Success Which Attends Their Efforts Is Due to Their Wonderful Tact—Some Examples.
Unless some means can be found for counteracting the ingenuity of the Paris swindler it seems clear that the French capital will quite outdo London and New York as the favorite home of the chevalier d'industrie.
That the Paris thieves have earned their reputation may be inferred from the fact that their slang is among the most rich in words and phraseology.
Le bonjourier, for instance, is the man who knocks at your door early in the morning, and if he hears no reply will come in and take the tongue, or "ticker," or whatever else he can find upon your table and mantelshelf. Watches, however, may be stolen at all hours by the bonjourier, and this is only one of his devices to gain possession of your property. A very good story is told at his own expense by one of our judges.
He was trying a case in which a witness swore that he could not fix the exact time of a particular event because he had left his watch at home accidentally.
The counsel was rather skeptical about this, whereupon the judge said: "There is nothing unusual in that. Why, only this morning I left my watch on the dressing table and did not recollect it till, before entering the court, I wanted to find out the time." When the judge got home he found that a messenger had visited the house, mentioned the judge's forgetfulness, described where the watch was and asked for it to take to the owner. Then the judge remembered what he had said in open court.
THE SNUFFBOX TRICK.
The sans chagrin, or "griefless one," goes into a shop and has brought out before him a quantity of different articles.
He then feigns epilepsy, and with the aid of a bit of soap he foams at the mouth. He has for accomplices a learned Aesculapius, who comes in, accompanied by a friend. During the fit of epilepsy the friend and the Aesculapius are ransacking the till or otherwise earning their livelihood.
The coup de la tabatiere, or snuffbox trick, is still occasionally resorted to, but that ingenious race of traders, the French female shopkeepers, are exceedingly suspicious of gentlemen who are addicted to the practice of "taking a pinch" in their presence. One of them has recently been victimized in an artistic style by a swindler of this sort. He was accouered in garments suitable to the age and character of a person devoted to snuffing, and had all the appearance of having attained at least his sixtieth year. He called for watches and chains and spoke incidentally of his granddaughter, for whom he purposed on a future occasion to buy a wedding present at the same shop. He then selected one of the watches and one of the chains—not a very costly one—put them on and inspected himself in the looking glass at the other end of the shop.
Returning to the counter he expressed his satisfaction to the merchant, and taking out his snuffbox further testified to his feelings of gratification by indulging in a good pinch. While the box was in his hands it seemed polite to offer it to the lady, who did not, however, happen to be an admirer of the brown dust.
She had hardly declined the offer when the whole contents of the box were thrown in her eyes, and before she could recover from the shock the would be sexagenarian was careered along the street at a pace which would have done honor to a Paris gamin or street boy.
TRICKLY A FRIEND IN NEED.
The following is a true story which happened to me and an artist friend of mine. At 11 o'clock p. m. we were about leaving a small house in one of the avenues radiating from the Arc-de-Triomphe, where we had spent the evening. Unfortunately, however, the con-cierge cordon was broken and he could not find the key. It was impossible for us to get out by the door or for those of the tenants of the house who were abroad to get in. The concierge begged a tenant on the ground floor to let us get out by one of his windows and we promised to go after a locksmith.
All the shops were shut, however, and none of the locksmiths in the quarter would take the trouble to answer when we rang the bell. Under the circumstances the proper thing to do was to hail a policeman, but never a sergeant do ville could we find, though we went a long way down each of the avenues in turn. Failing to find an officer we asked where was the nearest police station.
The one in the Ternes quarter had been shut up for a couple of hours, the one at Batignolles the same, and at a third we were simply sent about our business.
It was now 1 o'clock in the morning, and a long line of benighted tenants was drawn up before the fast closed door.
We—their would be deliverers—were beginning to lose courage when a very suspicious looking individual—there were a good many of that sort about—stumbled against us. My friend the artist, who had all his wits about him, stopped the man quietly, and taking off his hat said, "I beg your pardon, sir, but you don't happen to have a jimmy and a set of skeleton keys in your pocket?" The man looked at both of us suspiciously for a moment and then whispered, "Is it to crack a crib?" The painter briefly explained the difficulty and the service required.
"All right," said the mysterious one, "but clear off the crowd. I don't want to give free lessons." We returned to the house, announced that a locksmith had been found, and begged the benighted ones to give him a wide berth. They let him pass, the lock was picked in the twinkling of an eye and the night prowler was overwhelmed with thanks. I wanted to give him forty cents for his trouble, but drawing himself up he with much dignity exclaimed, "No, sir, not among pals."
